THE CITY OF BOARDMAN LAUNCHES REDESIGNED WEBSITE

The City of Boardman has redesigned its website. After months of working with web design company, AHA Consulting of Portland, Oregon, the city's website committee is excited to launch the new, more interactive, and informative website.

The initial city website was launched in 2004. The city wanted an updated web presence that provided users information on services available at the City of Boardman. "We feel like this fresh modern design is a great representation of the customer service we strive for every day" said City Manager Karen Pettigrew.

The newly redesigned website, www.cityofboardman.com provides access to city resources and contacts in a clean, easily navigable format. Users now have the opportunity to research the city ordinance database, and view past city minutes, past press releases, and city maps. The new website is accessible via computer, smart phone and tablet.

One of the most exciting new features to the website is the two newsletters users can subscribe to. The Boardman Bulletin newsletter will email subscribers the most current information about the city, such as road closures, press releases, events, job opportunities, etc. The Amber Alert newsletter will notify subscribers of Amber Alerts when they are activated. The "subscribe to newsletters" link can be found under the "community" link on the homepage. The city hopes people will subscribe to both of these subscription lists.
